

HAND HYGIENE DURING TRANSIT

The front of the vehicle is considered a Clean Healthcare Worker Zone (green) and typically shouldn't contain infectious pathogens. The Patient Zone (red) is considered contaminated and includes any devices attached to a patient or any surfaces they may have touched. Areas where healthcare workers access or where medical consumables or equipment is stored is considered a Healthcare Worker Zone (yellow). Hand hygiene must be conducted with any movement between these zones to prevent cross contamination for patient and staff safety.

CLEAN HEALTHCARE WORKER ZONE

Conduct hand hygiene before entering a Clean Healthcare Worker Zone.

HEALTHCARE WORKER ZONE

Conduct hand hygiene before accessing clean equipment e.g. in overhead lockers and medication draws.

PATIENT ZONE

Conduct hand hygiene before and immediately after leaving the Patient Zone.